

DSL is my only choice for getting a static IP address and running a server at my home. I have NO choice of cable companies here and my cable company WILL NOT give me a static IP address. If the phone company is not required to allow other ISPs to use their lines they can dictate the prices I will be forced to pay. My current ISP also hires intelligent people for tech support. I would hate to have to talk to SBC's people. I do that at work and it's horrible.
